The complexities of patients and endoscopic procedures is ever increasing. Appropriate and adequate sedation is crucial for patient comfort, safety, procedural success and training. This one-day symposium will explore all aspects of sedation with the aim to improve quality of endoscopy sedation in UK. The meeting will involve faculty from UK and Europe.

Review different sedation options/protocols and sedation monitoring requirements in endoscopy

Explore the barriers and facilitators for propofol assisted endoscopy in UK, and to understand the European experience in deep sedation

Discuss new sedation techniques (use of High flow oxygen/capnography with standard sedation)

Discuss newer drugs in sedation (Remimazolam)

Recognition and management of sedation related complications
